HARRISBURG LAW NEWS
Submission information:
The NEXT issue of The Digest will be published on October 14, 2013.
All information should be submitted to Dorothy Koncar dakoncar@widener.edu, Administration Building by NOON, Wednesday, October 9, in order for the news to be published.
Marcellus Shale and hydraulic fracturing has been the subject of many stories, news reports, documentaries, movies, and controversies. In light of this, on Friday, September 27th, the Harrisburg campus of Widener Law put on a significant CLE about Marcellus Shale and its impact on sustainable energy that drew guest speakers from across the country. As this is currently a hot political and legal topic that will provide the backdrop for a wide range of research papers, the Harrisburg Librarians have pulled together a selection of resources that can help jump start research on this important topic.

A great tutorial on the basic mechanics of hydraulic fracturing (fracking) is found on the “How Stuff Works” website at:

http://science.howstuffworks.com/environmental/energy/hydraulic-fracking.htm

The NPR Texas website features a graphic representation of the fracking process, as well as current news stories:

http://stateimpact.npr.org/texas/tag/fracking/

A good starting point for research is the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection's Marcellus Shale information portal. From this site, there are links to information on: the mechanical process of fracking, federal and state regulations of the industry, as well as guides and practical information for landowners on potential lease agreements. In addition there are reports detailing the number and location of drilling sites in Pennsylvania, the drilling permits granted since 2009, and a range of industry and public interest links on Marcellus Shale issues. To access this information, go to the Department's website at:

http://www.portal.state.pa.us/portal/server.pt/community/marcellus_shale/20296

The Environmental Protection Agency documents, statistics, requests for information and regulations related to Region 3 (including Pennsylvania) can be found at:

http://www.epa.gov/region3/marcellus_shale/

From the Law Library’s Pennsylvania Legal Resources guide, the featured resources section on the homepage offers a collection of Marcellus Shale resources:

http://libguides.law.widener.edu/paresources

The May/June 2013 issue of the Internet Guide for the Legal Researcher E-Newsletter contains a robust collection of government and informational links on Marcellus Shale and fracking. Contact librarian Brent Johnson at 541-3984 for the login information:

http://www.infosourcespub.com/login/ign/issues.cfm

From the Law Library’s database collection, the Environmental Law Reporter is a good resource to consult. Using the subject index under the topic Natural Resources can lead you to cases, laws, and stories that will potentially touch on Marcellus Shale. This database can be found alphabetically listed at:

http://law.widener.edu/LawLibrary/Research/Databases.aspx

If you need assistance using these databases, or any other library resources, don’t hesitate to contact a reference librarian at 717-541-3933 or by using the “Ask a Librarian” widget at: http://law.widener.edu/LawLibrary.aspx
Now in its 10th year, the theme of the 2013 Pennsylvania Conference for Women is “The Power of Possibilities: Define Your Own Success.” Keynote speakers announced to date include:

Hillary Rodham Clinton, former Secretary of State & U.S. Senator from New York.

Madeleine Albright, America’s first female Secretary of State and bestselling author.

Glenda Hatchett, host and star of Judge Hatchett and bestselling author.

Sallie Krawcheck, one of the most successful and influential executives in financial services.

The Conference, set for Friday, November 1 at the Pennsylvania Convention Center in Philadelphia, will feature a full day of workshops and breakout sessions, a seated luncheon, a Career Pavilion, a Health & Wellness Pavilion and an exhibit hall. Widener Law is a supporting organization. As a Supporting Organization, you, your members and your staff are eligible for a registration discount. Please use the following Supporting Organization promotional code to secure the early bird price of $150 per person and $1800 for a table of 12: SO13PA.
